SABRET.—Stephen Girard said to a friend: "I have always considered advertising to be the great medium of success in my profession. And I have made it a principle to advertise liberally, and to use it as well as money. My experience having taught me that money well laid out, as by contributing to the wealth of the country, so does it secure to the individual a fortune which he would have lost."

THE TERRITORIES.

Olympia has had a genuine case of epizooty.

The Steilacoom Express says Tacoma is making a last effort to secure the terminus.

A thousand dollar house greeted the arbor John C. Graham at Salt Lake City on the 5th inst.

Mrs. A. J. Dunlway lectured to a full house in Olympia last Saturday evening on the subject of Marriage.

There are four vessels now loading with lumber at Port Townsend for San Francisco, and one for Callao, Peru.

Mr. James Chapman, of Olympia, had one of his fingers blown off last week by the accidental discharge of a pistol which he was handling.

Willie Wadsworth, of Salt Lake City, aged two years "sleeps in the valley" because his brother aged nine, didn't know the pistol was loaded.

May day was duly celebrated in Steilacoom with a grand picnic near by the garrison, in which a majority of the young folks partook and hugely enjoyed themselves.

The proposed balloon ascension at Olympia last Saturday went up the spout for want of sufficient encouragement, or, in other words, the people couldn't see it pecuniarily.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "New mines are reported to have been recently discovered down on the Colorado, and two or three parties are organizing in Pioche to go to them, or in quest of them."

It is reported that the Sioux Indians are willing to fight the whites, man to man, on open ground. They have stolen a great many horses and cattle out on the Laramie plains in Wyoming Territory.

A train of emigrants got into Pueblo, Colorado, on the 20th ult., on their way to Oregon, from the southern part of Kansas, numbering eighteen families. They will take the cars at Cheyenne on the U. P. R. R. as far as Ogden.

The Tribune says: "The Congregational Society of Olympia is in correspondence with Rev. Wallace Taylor, of Oberlin, Ohio, with a view to inducing him to come as their pastor. Mr. Taylor is a young man, unmarried, graduated lately from the Oberlin College, and is now commencing his ministerial career. The prospects for his coming are said to be very good."

The last number of the Olympia Courier contains a report from Father Wilbur to the Superintendent of Indian affairs for Washington Territory, in which the writer gives a detailed account of his late travels in the Eastern part of the Territory and interviews with various tribes substantially as detailed to our reporter and published in the OREGONIAN last week.

A letter from Denver, Colorado, dated April 22d, says: "Cattle are rushing through the streets of Denver, bawling for something to eat. Forty second street was crowded so to day with wild Texas cattle that men had to volunteer and help the policemen to drive them from town. Some of the cattle belong over 75 miles from here, and perhaps some have traveled twice that distance in search of something to eat. Some of the stock raisers here say it is nothing in the spring round ups to find cattle two hundred miles from home."

A correspondent at Seabeck sends to the Olympia Transcript the following: Everything is life and activity here. The mill is running day and night. The logging camps are in full blast on the canal. Two ships are now in port loading with lumber—the Gen. Cobb, and the Portlaw, Capt. Lloyd; the latter a foreign ship. Mr. Jacob Hauptly, butcher here, has just arrived overland from the Cowlitz with thirteen head of beef cattle. A man by the name of N. Baker, who had been here a short time, died at the Eagle Hotel, on Friday the 2d inst., and was buried on the 3d. He was about 25 years of age.

A Masonic Requiem.

THE SUBLIME LODGE OF SORROW AT THE BROOKLYN ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The stage of the Brooklyn Academy of Music was last evening the scene of the celebration of the peculiarly solemn ceremonies of the Sublime Lodge of Sorrow of Free Masons, held in honor of the memory of six prominent members, who had attained the thirty-second degree in order, and who have died since 1871. The names of the honored dead were Charles W. Nillette, Henry Rich, John McArthur, John R. Ryon, Frederick O. Degener, and John W. Coombs. The Lodge, last evening, was held under the auspices of Aurora Grata Lodge of Perfection, Charles T. Mc Clenachan acting as Grand Master, and Charles W. Homor as Grand Chaplain. The audience, which occupied all the seats of the Academy, was supplied with black-bordered programmes of the order or ceremonies. On the stage was a low platform covered with black cloth, on which was placed the catafalque, a casket of rosewood, with silver handles, resting on it. On either side and behind the casket were tall five-branched candlesticks, in which, red, blue, and green candles were alight. A small marble font, on which rested an open Bible, stood between the catafalque and the edge of the stage. The antique, high-back chair of the Grand Master had been placed immediately behind the catafalque, and on either side were the chairs for the other officers of the lodge. The ceremonies commenced at 8 P. M. by the entrance of the chorus singers, twenty-five in number, who stationed themselves on the left of the stage. The Grand and Deputy Masters, Orators, Wardens, Master of ceremonies, and Captain then entered from the rear of the stage, wearing the regalias or baldric of their order. An overture and march was performed by the orchestra in slow, funeral measure, at the close of which the officers took their places, and the chorus chanted "Put us not to Rebuke." The officers then severally explained the nature and object of the approaching ceremony, and the Grand Master, after delivering an oration relating chiefly to the virtues of the departed, announced the Lodge of Sorrow formally opened. After kneeling in prayer around three sides of the catafalque, the officers withdrew and the sliding scenery shut off all but the platform from view. When the curtain rose again, a long avenue of pillars was revealed in the dim light of the candles—all the gas having been turned down—the perfume of an unseen censer adding to the solemnity of the occasion. A funeral procession of twenty-three members, all in long robes of white, with metal turbans and bearing torches in the right hand, entered and marched slowly up and around the catafalque to the muffled music of the orchestra, and finally took their stations on each side. A procession of members in black robes and bearing torches next entered, and went through the same ceremony. They were followed by the pall-bearers in black robes with flowing white scarfs, and the deacons, who took their stations next the casket. The grand officers followed, and stood in line while the chorus chanted in response to the lessons uttered by the deacons. The sombre processions of black and white moved along once more in the march around the catafalque, while four little girls with golden-starred coronets strewed flowers on the casket. All then knelt in prayer with the chaplain, during which the casket was allowed to slide into the catafalque. The chants "Cease ye Mourners," "O Weep Not," and "Weep no More," were impressively rendered, and the officers and processionists retired. The candles were then extinguished, and while the orchestra rendered a march in slow measure, the benediction was pronounced, and the curtain fell.

Other Appointments, Etc.

The appointment of Minister to Russia has been tendered to Judge Pierrepont, of New York, in place of Orth, deceased.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Comptroller of Currency has authorized the organization of the First National Gold Note Bank of Santa Barbara, Capital $100,000.

The Louisiana Difficulty.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Much having recently been said concerning the prospective action of the President in relation to the Louisiana trouble, it may be stated that the President has received no telegram from Kellogg since last Friday, when the condition of affairs was reported as somewhat improved. There is no doubt the President would interpose to protect the State from domestic violence should the Governor make application for that purpose, provided facts should warrant the proceeding. It is nevertheless hoped by the President, as he expressed himself to a friend to-night, that all disturbance will soon cease, and that no such contingency as that contemplated by the Constitution would occur, but if it should he would act early within the limit of the Constitution and laws.

EASTERN STATES.

The Bowen Libel Suit.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Judge McCue, of Brooklyn City Court, to-day, granted an order vacating the order of arrest obtained by Winfield against H. C. Bowen, editor of the Brooklyn Union, in the libel suit for $100,000.

Strike in Boston.

BOSTON, May 12.—The strike of the coopers does not promise to be a success. Sugar refineries and others say they can obtain all the barrels required without their aid.

The Kansas Murder Mystery.

PARSONS, May 12.—Col. Boudinot, who has just returned from the scene of the Bender murders, reports three more graves discovered. Yesterday over 30,000 people were on the ground, and a train had just arrived with seven cars filled with people. Intense excitement prevails all over the country, and a firm determination is expressed to ferret out the parties engaged in the murders. It is understood that large rewards have been offered by the county and State for the capture. Nearly all the bodies of the dead were identified. It is also considered certain that a little girl was put alive into the grave of her father, as marks of violence were found on the body.

Murder in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—The Coroner's jury inquest on the bodies of Mary Jane Brankin and Jeremiah White showed that the girl had been enticed by White into his room, and, failing in his object, he cut her throat, set fire to the bed, and then cut his own throat.

The Great English Forgery.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The prosecution closed to-day in the examination of McDonnel, the Bank of England forger, and the prisoner's counsel presented a plea for acquittal on the ground that, on the 24th of April, after a full hearing, McDonnel was discharged. The taking of the case to the grand jury, and the objection now made. A motion to strike out the evidence of a majority of the witnesses, on the ground that their depositions were ex parte statements, was overruled. Adjourned till Saturday.

The Goodrich Murder Mystery.

NEW YORK, May 13.—At the request of the police of Brooklyn, the investigation concerning the death of Clara Goodrich was held until 11 o'clock this morning, by which time the police hope to elicit something relative to the fire from Prof. Tighe, who, Lucette Meyers says, from the description given, she knew as Rockwell.

The Tweed Case.

NEW YORK, May 13.—William M. Tweed, who was to have been called for trial to-day, did not appear. He is not in the city. It is rumored that he has, through his agents, secured a farm lying in the rear of the State, and has been advised by his counsel not to return to New York for trial.

Miscellaneous.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Among the passengers for Europe, temporarily detained by the return of the Oceanic, were Mrs. Tiffany and Hubbard, of San Francisco.

LEXINGTON, May 12.—The spring races opened brilliantly. The track and horses were in excellent condition, and the attendance was quite large.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Survivors of the Polaris Expedition in New Brunswick.

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 13.—Intense excitement prevails here owing to the landing of the Tyson party this afternoon. Tyson and Meyers remained on board until they were supplied with clothing by the American Consul. All look well and are in good health and spirits. Capt. Hall died fifteen days after returning from the first expedition. He was paralyzed before his death and gradually sank, dying at 9:25 A. M. Meyers says he drove the dogs while the sledge was dragged over the ice by great force, a woman and several children were under the boat, while the men were outside trying to keep the boat from being washed off several times after being rescued. Their feet swelled and sickness set in, but they recovered and are now almost entirely well.

Success of the Khivan Expedition.

NEW YORK, May 13.—A Herald special from London says Khiva is taken. The troops from Lashkend and Fort No. 1, after a concentration on Basken Hills, moved directly across Kirkel Kum desert to the lower Oxus. There they communicated with the supply steamers from Fort No. 1, thus practically establishing a new base of supplies within striking distance of Khiva. This makes the success of further operations a certainty.

Authentic Statements about the Supposed Hostile Intentions of the Indians East of the Mountains.

It is authoritatively announced that reliable information has been received at the Military Headquarters in this city, from Fort Lapwai, of date the 4th, and Camp Harney the 5th instants, relative to the attitude of the Indians in the vicinity of these points, and for the purpose of allaying the fears of settlers or the excitement reported to exist among them, in some portions of the State and adjacent Territories, the public are informed that there are no unusual movements or hostile demonstrations upon the part of the Indians in the region of country about Fort Lapwai. It is not believed that at present the settlers have anything to fear from Joseph's band of the Nez Perces in Wallowa valley, unless hostilities are accidentally inaugurated through some indiscreet or vicious act upon the part of the whites. It is reported that recently "unusual quantities of ammunition were sold to Indians at Lewiston and Walla Walla." If this be true, a few scalps taken in those localities from the illicit traders would not disturb the equinimity of the people, or the military authorities.

At Camp Harney and vicinity the Indians have been peaceable and obedient all winter. They are in charge of Mr. Samuel B. Patrish, of this city, and appear perfectly satisfied, consulting him with reference to all their movements. There have been during the winter, 450 Indians at Camp Harney, who have been receiving rations; also a band of about 60 who are some seventy-five miles from Camp Harney, in Stein's mountain, have sent for provisions as they have needed them; the roads being in such bad condition it has been impossible for them to move their families to the post. At this time there are only about 300 Indians drawing rations regularly. Those that have left Harney, have gone with the permission of the Agent, and for a limited time, to hunt and fish.

We-aw-wa, one of the head chiefs, is now on the Malheur river, with a band of about fifty or sixty, fishing. Water-belly, a sub-chief, is about seventy-five miles away, in Stein's Mountain, with about eighty Indians, hunting. A band of about thirty or forty have gone to Donner-and-Blitzen valley, hunting. Others are scattered in bands of from ten to twenty, in the mountains, hunting. All of these bands constantly send in messengers to the Agent, to learn when Mr. Odmeal, the Superintendent, (who is expected daily) arrives. All are friendly and quiet, and say they intend to remain so. The Agent does not apprehend any trouble with these Indians. Old Winnemucca, the head chief, is thought to have gone on a buffalo hunt down the railroad with some of the other tribes.

Yee, son of old Winnemucca, was at Camp Harney May 4th, and reports about sixty of this tribe on the Owyhee; says they will soon come to Camp Harney. Col. Sanford, 1st Cavalry, met Fagan and his band of about eighty on the Snake river near the mouth of the Malheur; all were quiet and peaceable.

Mr. Brown, Special Messenger of the Indian Department, who arrived at Camp Harney about April 20th with Fagan, the most powerful sub-chief of this tribe, reports Eagle Eye, or Pa-ga-ha, one of the head chiefs, with about two hundred Indians, on the Weiser, all quiet.

The Agent reports that he can neither see nor hear of any hostile movements among any of the tribe in that section of the country, and thinks that as soon as the Agency is established and built they will all come in without any force being used.

Maj. Otis, 1st Cavalry, reports he is satisfied the Indians in that section "have the best intentions, and if not molested by parties who desire an Indian war, or persons who are frightened, will remain peaceable."

This information is authentic. We have not the slightest doubt of its correctness. We do not question the motives of those who have expressed fears of Indian outbreaks in the Eastern part of Oregon and in the adjacent Territories, but we have never for a moment supposed such fears were based upon any real grounds. We are truly glad to be able to assure the people of exposed districts, thus reliably, of the peaceable disposition of the tribes.

The Buffalo Courier protests against any effort to sustain the Democratic organization. In a recent issue it says: "The party of the future is that which can gather to itself the best and purest elements of the country, and convince the people of its intolerance of official theft and baseness. During the past winter it was within the power of the Democracy to accomplish at once these conditions of success. United, unflinching, uncompromising action on the part of the Democratic representatives in Congress, simply on the two matters of the Credit Mobilier and the Salary steal, would have won back the popular confidence which the party lost 12 years ago, and set it again on the high road to success. The opportunity was wickedly sacrificed. A majority of our representatives took pains to prove what Republican pessimists are constantly preaching—that there is no more sincerity, honesty, and purity in one party than in the other. They betrayed our cause, and the golden chance was thrown away."

According to "Oakham's" last letter to the New York World, Mr. Thomas Bailey Aldrich will have a sketch in the June Atlantic, to be called "Miss Mehetable's Son," this curious title being followed by a suggestive motto from "Hamlet:"

King—"Is there no offence in 't?"
Hamlet—"No offence i' the world."

Mr. Browning's new poem will bear the unique title of "The Red Cotton Night-Cap Country"—a most gorgeous name, more showy than "The Lotos Eaters," but quite as suggestive of slumber.

The Boston Advertiser of April 20th contains the following item, the point to which is very sharp: "Judge Lord on Saturday emphatically declined to review a decision rendered by an associate justice, stating that such interference by associate justices in other States had brought the judiciary into disgrace, and he would not lend his sanction to sustain and foster the disrepute." A rejoinder from some member of the New York judiciary is in order.

The New York Herald of May 1st contains a long cablegram from Edmund Yates, one of its Vienna correspondents. The dispatch is made up, in great part, of Mr. Yates' reminiscences of the London Exhibition of 1851. In the same issue the Herald publishes lengthy biographies of its four reporters at the Exposition—Edmund Yates, John Russell Young, Bertholdi Auerbach and Louise Muhlbach.

More Interesting Discoveries.

Almost every day brings to light some new and interesting discovery in regard to the antiquities of the region bordering upon the eastern shore of the Mediterranean. Upon that country have centered probably more of the inquiries and speculations of archæologists, during the last century, than upon all other parts combined; just as in the darkages the religious zeal of the Western world spent itself and exhausted the material resources of the Christian world in the endeavor to recover the same land from the grasp of the Saracen whose infidel tread was considered a desecration. It was the Canaan to which Moses looked with a longing that was not to be satisfied, from the top of Pisgah. The little strip of land forming the immediate coast of the Mediterranean was the seat of Phœnician power and prowess. Hence from island to island to the west, even to high-walled Gibraltar went forth the Phœnician name, borne by colonies of this busy people. In their own tongue they called themselves Canaanites, because they were the children of Canaan, the son of Ham. Thus does their traditional history reach back and connect them with Noah and the Deluge. They were there when Abraham came to Palestine, and were at war with Israel five hundred years later.

The history of these enterprising and active descendants of Ham is but imperfectly understood. It has been collected from monuments and inscriptions, chiefly relating to the deeds of the chief men of the nation from tradition, which is always founded in truth, but never truthful, and from such data as the study of the material products of that ancient civilization, as have been from time to time discovered. The tombs at Sidon, the Assyrian tablets, the remnants of bridges, ruined for decades of centuries and buried in the debris of cycles,—all these are of great interest to the antiquarian; telling of the life and activities of a people who wielded a greater influence in their day, than any other then upon the earth.

But the American exploring expedition to Palestine, fitting itself out at Beirut, preliminary to its journey to the Jordon, has brought to light several new inscriptions, which though they do not relate to the most ancient people of that country, are regarded with considerable interest by scholars. These new inscriptions which were found on the stones near a small river that runs into the Mediterranean in the vicinity of Beirut, are in the Greek language, and of a period later than Homer, but there is no doubt of their genuineness, as they have been found in such situations that it is impossible for them to have been placed there within many centuries of the present age. They are the link that connects the Assyrian literature with that of modern times. Many of the events they relate, as well as the names they commemorate are not Grecian in character, and the entire inscriptions taken together, though in the Greek tongue, are said to be strongly tinged with Assyrian coloring. A writer in the Independent gives the following translation of one of these inscriptions:

"Procle, friend of Tatian, son of Arisma of Aco, as to his birthplace, of honorable descent, leaving behind the royalties of his father for a common rank, a Phœnician in the bloom of his youth, of Baalbeck by the will of the gods ruler. Forthwith to Malek performing sacred rites, as many as he thought proper for Phœnicia itself, in proportion also to this very to be executed purpose. Ah great marvel! the steepest parts of the promontories he made level in the middle, inorder that from beginning to end the road being even, in the ravines we may escape difficult approaches, the hight being circuitous as to the route."

Of all the colossal swindles for which New York has become notorious, the last is the greatest, and that last is simply a bill introduced in the New York Legislature to incorporate a company for bringing salt water into the city of New York. Henry G. Stebbins and Henry Clews are named among the incorporators. A correspondent of the Times thus summarizes the bill:

The company are to lay pipes in the streets for the conveyance of water, erect reservoirs, &c., the object being to extinguish fires, flush the sewers, &c. The sixteenth section of the bill is a remarkable one. It provides that the company shall levy on every freeholder of the city, at the rate of twenty cents a foot, annually, for each foot of land owned by him fronting on the streets; from every fire-insurance company, or branch of one, $200 a year; on every marine company, $100; from every public institution, twenty cents for each foot of land held by it fronting on the streets; from every foreign-going steamer or vessel of over 100 tons burden, $5 for every voyage made by them, and from every coast-wise vessel $10 per year. Evidently intended as an excuse for these cool provisions, another section makes some firmsy provision for giving the surplus funds of the company to the city.

It would be an interesting bit of information to know just what the annual revenue of this modest company would be under the provisions given above.

The Detroit Tribune gives the following as the literal translation of a letter in the Syriac language, received by Miss Jennie Dean, formerly of Detroit, but now of Oroomiah, Persia. It is from "Dea' John," the jeweler of Geog Ya;a, and reads as follows:

Honorable and Most Excellent Miss Dean, Lady:

First, receive peace.
Second, receive peace.
Third, I ask after your health. If you ask after my health, thanks to God, it is very good. But one request there is, that you do service in Geog Yapa, which is this. That poor blind woman, Zena, of Geog Yapa, she was begging me that I would write of her condition that it was very miserable. She is the one to whom you gave clothes last year, now she is entirely without clothes.

I am explaining before you, the great and worthy Lady—but still I asked to be excused for my request. Amen. DEA' JOHN.

A Boston correspondent gives a spicy account of a singular row in the religious society of Tremont Temple, of which Rev. Dr. Justin D. Fulton—otherwise known as "Lager Beer Fulton"—is pastor. The Dr. wanted his congregation to establish a paper in which his sermons might be published, and to that end asked them to donate $1,000. The society made the liberal proposition to support the paper by deducting the $1,000 from their pastor's salary, but this view of the matter was not agreeable to Mr. F. He became excited, tendered his resignation, and is now, doubtless, comfortably situated in Brooklyn, New York, whither he was summoned by a congregation of admirers.

The New York Herald says: The faculty of the University of Kentucky, it appears, have refused the selection of ex-President Andrew Johnson as commencement orator, while the students have entered into a solemn vow not to listen to any one else.

Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, gets a salary of $10,000 a year; Jennings, of the Times, has $10,000; Croly had $3,000 on the World; Hudson had $20,000 on the Herald, and was retired on a pension of $10,000.

Puget Sound merchants had ordered about $20,000 worth of goods from the house of Fowler & Slocum in New York which failed last week. The merchants will probably not get their goods, but will suffer a direct loss in money.

Dr. Forbes Barclay.

Doctor Forbes Barclay, a man as extensively known among the older settlers of Oregon as any other individual connected with our early history, died yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, at his residence in Oregon City.

Dr. Barclay was born in Scotland, and was 61 years of age at the time of his death. Soon after the completion of his professional studies, he joined one of the early expeditions sent out from England to explore the Arctic Seas in search of a northwest passage. The expedition to which he was attached preceded the last ill-fated voyage of Sir John Franklin by a number of years. On returning from this voyage to England, Dr. Barclay entered the employ of the Hudson Bay Company, and came as a surgeon of that company to Vancouver, where was then the principal depot and headquarters of the company for all this section of country, and the residence of its chief factor and most important agents. He reached Vancouver in 1830. Two years afterward he married the daughter of Mr. Pahnier, the company's chief agent. When the American immigrants began to settle in the Willamet valley, there were but few reliable physicians among them, and Dr. Barclay, although prohibited by the Company's rules from going away from their post to practice his profession, became extensively known to the settlers, being consulted by and prescribing for them throughout the valley. In 1850 he removed to Oregon City, where he has resided ever since. Shortly after his removal to Oregon City, Dr. Barclay concluded to become a citizen of the country in which so many of his eventful years had passed, and accordingly he took out his naturalization papers, and renounced all allegiance to the British realm. From this time up to the day of his death he was a peaceable, law-abiding citizen of the United States; attentive always to the duties of that citizenship, and thoroughly identified with all the best interests of this State. His strict business integrity, his sagacity, benevolence and the possession of the best virtues of head and heart, made him an object of love and reverence to all who had learned to prize his worth. Unto him the hoary head was a crown of glory. And though his white hairs may never again be seen in the daily walk, though the bent form may go no more forth on its errand of mercy and love, there abides with us the memory of a kindly face, a gentle hand always ministrant of good deeds, but above and to be prized far more than these, the sweet fragrance of a life well-spent. Upon him as he passes into the dark valley, rest the benedictions of all the race. Verily "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Dr. Barclay leaves a widow and five children, who will receive the best sympathies of a large circle of friends.

An exchange says: "Visconti Venosta, Minister for Foreign Affairs in the Italian Government, lately delivered a speech in the Parliament at Rome, from which we make the following remarkable abstract. It is the first time that the Minister of a Christian State has emphatically pronounced against the existence of a Supreme Being and the belief in a future state:"

"The priests are nothing; they have no power to injure us. All they are able to do is to threaten us with the Anger of God. Gentlemen, that finger has no terror for me! I do not waste my time in settling whether there is a God or not; I have something else to do. It he exists, it is not to him that I shall answer for my actions, but to public opinion, history and my reason. All the European Powers follow our example; they never trouble themselves about God. If perchance his name is mentioned in diplomacy, it only raises a smile. We have to watch more important things; to occupy ourselves with questions that relate to the next world, whose existence many doubt and which nobody has ever seen, would be folly. Since all the European Powers think as we do about God and the next world, why, gentlemen, do you allow yourselves to be overwhelmed by imaginary terrors in reference to the issue of the Roman question? The terror is not worthy of you."

The famous pilgrimage to Mecca, which is always a cause of anxiety to the European governments, has been performed, this year, under the most reassuring conditions. Thanks to the intelligent zeal of the sanitary commission, composed of French, English, and Ottoman doctors, no cases of cholera have occurred among the visitors to the holy city, the number of whom is said to have exceeded 150,000.

What is Thought Abroad.

[From the London Telegraph, March 28.]

At a time when the great Vienna Exhibition is preparing to bid the world enter and inspect its marvels, it may seem somewhat premature to call attention to another World Fair to be held three years hence. Still there are peculiar circumstances attaching to this latest development of the system of industrial competition inaugurated by the Hyde Park Exhibition of 1871, which assign to it an importance exceeding that of ordinary international displays. The United States of America have invited all the world and his wife to visit, in 1876, the grand,

UNRIVALLED, AND ORIGINAL SHOW

to be held at Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania. We are afraid that the majority of English readers will hardly appreciate the significance of the date assigned for this American exhibition, nor will they understand why the Quaker capital should be selected from all the cities of the Union as a fitting site for the New World Art Palace. Incredible as the statement may appear to our transatlantic kinsfolk, we suspect a large number of well-educated Englishmen are not aware that 1776 was the date of the Declaration of Independence; and that, three years from the coming month of April, the United States will be able to celebrate the centenary of their freedom. We should be sorry to affirm that even persons not unacquainted with the story of the revolt of our American colonies were aware that Philadelphia was for a long period the headquarters of the rising against British rule the cradle, to use a favorite transatlantic metaphor, of American independence. There is, however, a certain historic appropriateness in the fact that, in the year when the Union completes its first century, Europe should be invited to witness at Philadelphia the advance that art, science, and industry have made under the rule of the great Western Republic. By position, character, and tradition, the City of Brotherly Love may fairly be regarded as of American republicanism. If not so cosmopolitan as New York, so Old-World-like as Boston, so go-ahead as Chicago, so Western as St. Louis, it unites more of the leading characteristics of American civilization than any other city in the Union. Each State naturally gives the pre-eminence to its own chief town. But if an American were called upon to put his own State out of the question, and to say what single city of the Republic represented most fully the past, present, and future of the Union, he could award the prize to Philadelphia without a shadow of doubt.

So, as we have said, the traders of the globe are to have their trysting-place for 1876 fixed at Philadelphia. Experience has taught Americans that exceptional inducements are required to persuade European visitors to cross the Atlantic in large numbers. The New York Exhibition, some few years ago was a comparative failure. Nor was there any great concourse of strangers from "beyond the sea," to the Boston Monster Music Jubilee last year. But the Philadelphia Floral Exhibition in Yankeephrase, to be "the biggest thing out" in the way of an show. The Congress of Washington has passed an act incorporating a company which, under the title of the Centennial Board of Finance, is to have the management of the Exhibition. The company is empowered to raise the large amount of some two millions sterling for the purposes of the show. As we understand, the subscription is to have a quasi-national character. Each State and Territory of the Union will be entitled to take up a certain amount of the stock in proportion to its population. Thus, the almost unpeopled Territory of Wyoming, in the far West, is supposed for some four hundred and fifty pounds, while the Empire State of New York is put down for close upon a quarter of a million. What the financial prospects or advantages of the

may be we do not pretend to say; but, considering the passion of the Americans for enterprises which combine profit and patriotism, we should be disposed to think the fund would be forthcoming. The Legislature of Pennsylvania has already voted a grant of half a million towards the exhibition. The building for the World's Fair is intended to be of a permanent character, so as to constitute a memorial of the first centenary of American independence; and we shall be surprised if the display should not mark an epoch in the annals of exhibitions. No doubt itself is not very rich in artistic or industrial products. Lowell cannot for a minute compete with Manchester and Lyons. Sheffield hardly stand comparison with Birmingham and the iron works of Pittsburg are not to be mentioned with those of South Wales and Staffordshire. In natural products and agricultural products, however, the New World may fairly challenge the Old; while the extraordinary mechanical ingenuity of the Americans, stimulated as it is by the constant necessity of economizing labor in a thinly-populated country, is certain to hold its own in any international display of patent inventions. Moreover, the completion of the Pacific Railway has made the United States a part of halfway house between Europe and the Far East, and we may reasonably expect that Chinese and Japanese will pour forth their treasures to the American emporium of commerce. In so far, however, as will rest upon European custom for its support, its main attraction will not be found in the wares displayed about the counter. It is not to see fine specimens of hominy, sweet potatoes, or Indian corn, or even to inspect new reaping machines or patent elevators, that Westward-bound tourists will cross the ocean, as we trust they may do, in 1876. There are a vast number of people in this country who would like to see something of the New World, of which we hear so much, but who yet, somehow, shrink from the trouble and expense of making a long voyage with no definite object. The proposed exhibition will, we hope, supply the requisite motive for many such journeys. Not the least potent of the influences which have led to misunderstandings which have at times existed between England and America lies in the fact that the denizens of the New World know so much more about the outward aspect of the Old World than we can possibly about them. No person who has not visited the United States can realize the extensity of the area, the magnitude of the business, the variety of the States which compose the Union, just in the same way as no American who has not visited these shores can realize how a country scarcely larger than one of the minor States that make up the Republic can be one of the greatest among European powers. No doubt, a trip of a few weeks across the ocean and back will not enable any traveller, however observant, to understand the working of the intricate or to weigh the comparative advantages and disadvantages of democracy. But we may safely say that even a week passed on the railroad tramways connecting with Atlantic cities will teach the ordinary tourist much about the country which he would not acquire from the most careful study of De Tocqueville's incubrations. And everything which leads our countrymen to go westward instead of eastward in their summer outings is an advantage to both England and America. We are convinced, however, that if the exhibition of Philadelphia is to draw European custom, something must be done to make the voyage to and fro easier and cheaper than it is at present. With the enterprise that distinguishes Americans, and the marvelous system of locomotion and hotels which they possess, there should be no difficulty in organizing a series of excursion trips to the United States during 1876. Tourists might arrange to have their board and expenses of transit fixed at so much per day, from the hour they leave the tender in the Mersey to that at which they disembark at Liverpool on their return. It is to this point we would direct the attention of the Centennial Commission, if they wish to see Philadelphia crowded in 1876, not only with the representatives of all the United States, but with a motley multitude of nations, such as gathered at London in 1851, and Paris in 1867.

The funniest suit for breach of promise of marriage on record, is to come before a Pittsburg (Pa.) court, the plaintiff being a woman, with a husband, and, as she claims, a good one. The man who jilted her, and married another in her youth, is possessed of considerable wealth.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Financial.

TUESDAY EVENING, May 12, 1873.

Gold in New York to-day, 115¼.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 86½ buying, 96½ selling.

Gold bars are quotable at 900 fine.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average California, 12s 1d, club, 12s 3d.

Advices by mail from New York are to the 3d inst., and indicate a decidedly greater ease at that point in the money market. "The evidences," says the Independent, "of the letting out of the currency, which has been locked up for some months past, to create a stringency and cause a decline in prices on the Stock Exchange, are very clear; but there is no reason to anticipate such low rates of interest as have been the rule in the summer months for some years past. The combined operations of the cliques in manipulating the money market have been arrested by the Treasury Department whether any such effects were intended or not; and the Treasury statement of the 25th ult., contains one item which would in itself be sufficient to explain to a considerable extent one cause of the tight money market from which the business community has suffered so severely. It seems that Secretary Richardson keeps on special deposit in the sub Treasury $28,000,000 of greenbacks, for the purpose of paying off that amount of three per cent. certificates whenever they shall be presented; and, if they should never be presented for payment, he would doubtless continue to keep the money deposited for them, instead of putting it in circulation. The three per cents. are used as a basis of circulation; but, as they cannot be employed as currency, they are not equivalent to currency, and do not answer the same purpose."

The express companies carried packages of currency to New York during the week ending May 3d to the amount of $10,500,000, a considerable part of which, there is good reason to believe, was sent away from Wall Street expressly to create a scarcity; and but a small part of this large sum of money was allowed to find its way into the banks, as was shown by the figures of the Bank Statement, the increase in the legal reserve being $674,000. The gain in greenbacks over the previous week was but $1,070,800, and the deposits but $1,053,300.

Lower Rates.

The New York Independent of May 3d says:

One of the most encouraging symptoms of easier money and returning confidence, is seen in the lower rates of discount for business paper, outside of the banks, than have been noted before in some four or five months. Though a class of acceptances, which may be classed as "prime" can be had at 12 to 15 per cent per annum, yet first class business paper, with 60 to 90 days to run, finds takers at 9 to 12 per cent. Railroad acceptances, with good endorsers, are still negotiated at terms not much better than 1 per cent. a month. For call loans, on miscellaneous securities, the rates during the week have ranged at about 1-16 and interest; but at the close they were lower, and money was in good supply at 7 per cent. gold interest to 7 per cent. currency.

British Finances.

Mr. Lowe, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has presented to Parliament the following exhibit of British finances.

Finances for the Year ending March 31st, 1873.

Grants by Parliament	£71,881,0 0
Expenditures	70,714,000
Estimated revenue	71,648,000
Actual revenue	70,608,775
Present date	788,800,000
Reduction of the debt during the year	6,501,000
Estimates for the Year ending March 31st, 1874.
Expenditures	£71,671,000
Decrease from last year, notwithstanding the enhanced price of coal, etc	10,000
Revenue as it stands	£6,617,000
Balance on hand at the end of the year, close upon	12,000,000

This shows a reduction of the national debt, during the year, by the amount of £6,661,000, or more than thirty millions of dollars, which is a marvel in English history. The announcement put the House of Commons in the best of humor, no such reduction of the debt having been anticipated. Another surprise, was the statement of the Chancellor that the Government would recommend a reduction of fifty per cent. in the duty on sugar, and also of a penny in the tax on incomes. It proposes to pay one-half of the Geneva Award out of the revenues of the present year, without any increase of taxation.

Eastern Dry Good Markets.

New York dates of the 3d inst., give the dry goods market as generally active. The commission houses and manufacturers' agents have done but a limited amount of business in domestic cottons, and prices have a drooping tendency. Unbleached sheetings and shirtings have been in rather better demand. Bleached sheetings and shirtings are in fair demand, but the sales are limited. Printing cloths are in rather better demand and prices are firmer. Prints are less active, the demand being restricted mostly to the choice styles of standard goods. Printed lawns and percales are in good demand, though the coldness of the weather checks sales in these fabrics.

Cottonades are selling more freely and an advance has been established in the prices of certain grades. Worsted dress goods are in moderately active demand and the new styles are selling well at steady prices.

Cloths and overcoatings are in slightly improved demand; but the sales are confined mostly to particular grades of the more popular makes. The sales of overcoatings are almost entirely confined to the clothiers. Doeskins are inactive, the demand is restricted to a few grades, and the sales are to a very limited extent. Fancy cassimeres of the better qualities are in steady demand; but the sales are in small lots, and prices are barely steady. Satinets are inactive. The sales are to a very limited extent, but prices are steady and unchanged. Flannels are without any noticeable change; the demand is about as usual at this season, and sales are effected at steady prices. Foreign dry goods are inactive for the season, and prices are only barely sustained, though price for gold of the past week rendering it difficult for importers to stimulate purchases. The market is abundantly supplied with all descriptions of staple and fancy goods adapted to the warm season. Lawns, piques and suiting dress goods are in demand, but heavy goods are in less request. White goods are generally firm in price, but silks are dull and woolens are unusually depressed.

Supply of Wheat for Europe.

The Mark Lane Express, the leading commercial journal of England, says in its late issue:

With regard to the foreign supplies, the amount we shall require to meet the demand of the second six months of the season, which will end on the 31st of August, is estimated at four and a half million quarters, or 750,000 quarters per month, and we still look for a considerable supply from San Francisco, which, indeed, is in daily course of arrival. Of late, from the intelligence from Adelaide, Australia, that their wheat harvest had proved the most productive they have ever reaped, and that they will have some thousands of tons to export to Europe. Some large shipments of wheat were then in progress, and the time nearing for their destination. The growers had a difficulty to encounter in the scantiness of the rolling stock of the railways to meet the emergency. But the old proverb of "where there's a will there's a way," is not obsolete, even at the Antipodes, and during the harvest in December they were received at the rate of a thousand tons per day at Adelaide, which was immediately put on board the ships in the harbor. Like the California[illegible]mers, those of Australia sowed a much greater breadth of wheat than usual last season, and they are now reaping the benefit of it, and thus help two of the most distant countries from England—the one at our antipodes, and the other in the North Pacific Ocean—we are, in our emergency, likely to be kept from starvation prices. The price of wheat at Adelaide for England is 63s per quarter, cost, freight and insurance; the quality, as is well known, is good and heavy, sometimes weighing 70 pounds per bushel. It will be some weeks yet before the Australian wheat arrives off the coast; and even then there may be a competition for it between the British and continental merchants of those countries which have, like ourselves, experienced a deficient harvest. This has already intercepted the supplies from the Black Sea, whether first destined to Marseilles or to England, and if the wants of other States are pressing they will bid high for supplies.

Miscellaneous.

Some idea of the vast interest dependent on lake navigation may be formed from the fact that there was last week in Chicago nearly 11,000,000 bushels of corn and grain stored expressly for lake transportation, and that behind this stock there are millions of bushels of corn and wheat in the cribs and warehouses all over the West.

The last number of the New York Shipping List says the quantity of grain which is now held in the United States and Canada is perhaps larger than it has been for several years. The stocks at the interior points of distribution are large, and the receipts are kept up, proving the supply to be larger than that of the previous year, while the purchases of foreign countries, and most notably England, have fallen off. The result of the year's business must have been unsatisfactory, and the chances of successful operations under existing circumstances are not by any means strong. From almost every quarter of the globe reports of stock on hand and prospects of the coming crop are not such as to encourage high prices, and with so much tameness now, and probable high freights, the opening of navigation is not likely to add strength to present prices.

California papers are calling the attention of the people of that State to the necessity of repealing the specific contract law, and adopting the Government paper as the circulating medium.
